EXPLANATIONS.

The first General Catalogue of the Seminary was published in 1815. From that date to 1857, one was issued every third year. None was published between 1857 and 1867. That of 1857 was the first which gave lists of students who did not complete the required course of study. That of 1867 was the first which attempted to give dates of ordination, and continuous records of pastoral and other service, and was necessarily very imperfect. In the present issue, by an extended correspondence, much research, and the valuable aid of persons well informed in such facts, much additional information is given, and many errors are corrected. To all the living graduates whose residence could be ascertained, who had not given information in 1867, and to very many of those who had done so, letters were sent; to some of them, four times, each letter "to be returned if not delivered in ten days." That defects still exist in the records of some whose present residence is given, is therefore due to no lack of appeal. In such cases, and in many instances of persons deceased, it has been necessary to search the Minutes of Ecclesiastical bodies, Reports of Societies, Triennial Catalogues of Colleges and Seminaries, college histories and records of college classes, published and unpublished, files of weekly, monthly, and quarterly periodicals, biographies, church histories, local histories, and genealogies; and to consult the memories of classmates. Manuscript records of the Seminary, and a collection of letters from graduates, obtained in 1845 by Prof. B. B. Edwards, have also been carefully examined. The years of college graduation have been compared with the respective Triennials.

A careful collation of the lists has been made with a set of Annual Catalogues, some of which were not known, in 1867, to be in existence; with the matriculation book; and with Orders of Exercises at Anniversaries. The result has been,— the re-insertion of names of some graduates which had ceased to appear; the addition of many to the lists of those not completing the course; the transfer of many of this kind from one class to another; and the omission of some who have been found never to have been actually connected with the Seminary. A number hitherto given as "Resident Students," have been found to belong to regular classes.

A more marked change is made in the lists of the early classes. Names of students leaving prior to 1816, have hitherto been inserted under the year in which they ceased to be members of the Seminary, and without regard to their connection with their actual Class. The discovery of early Catalogues, the lists in the Panoplist and Recorder, and the records and recollections of early graduates, have secured a rearrangement strictly by classes.

The plan of this Catalogue will be easily understood with the following explanations:

1. Under each year is first given an alphabetical list of graduates of that year; then, after a dash, the list of those who, although in that class, did not complete the course of study, — including in parenthesis, immediately after the name, the number of years of study, so far as known. Students in the SPECIAL COURSE follow the list of members in the full course, in each year; those who did not complete the Special Course being below the dash. The year 1869 is the first year of graduation in this Course. "Resident Students." and "Resident Licentiates," are given by themselves, in the latter part of the Catalogue.

2. The first line in each account gives, first, the name; secondly, the State of birth (occasionally necessarily replaced by the State of residence upon entering the Seminary); thirdly, the college; and, fourthly, the year of college graduation. It is then attempted to give the date of ordination, the successive pastorates, professorships, agencies, etc., in chronological order. The account of each person is to be deemed continuous unless dotted lines appear, — which signify ignorance. Slight intervals of years between two contiguous terms of service, not thus marked, denote "without charge," and are not usually mentioned. Years found in parenthesis imply certainty as to the given year and uncertainty as to other years. Thus, " ('44)–'50." implies that the minister was in service in '44 and may have been earlier.

3. The name of a church (or place) without designation, implies a pastorate; "s.s." in such a connection denotes "stated supply"; "w.c." before the name of a place denotes residence without charge; "s.s." is often equivalent to Home Missionary.

4. A date of ordination immediately followed by the name of church (or other service), with no dash intervening, implies that the ordination was to the pastorate of that church, or for such other service as is mentioned; with a dash, it denotes an ordination "without charge."

5. A period and dash, following a term of service, invariably signifies its completion. Occurring at the close of the account of any person, it implies of course that nothing definite is known after that service.

6. A term of service ended by death, is signified by the half-dash and semicolon, and is always followed by the date of death. Thus, —"Rushville, N.Y., '32–; died there, 28 August 1835, aged 50." implies that the pastorate begun in 1832 was terminated by death.

7. A half-dash and period, closing the account of any person, signifies that he is still in the service then mentioned. Thus, —"Braintree, Ms., '11–." implies that the minister is still pastor of that church.

8. Churches are supposed to be Congregational, unless otherwise mentioned; except that when some other denomination is mentioned, either in ordination, or name of church, any following churches are of the same denomination, until another is specified.

9. Few abbreviations are used which do not explain themselves. Among them are the following:

Of denominations: Bapt., Baptist. Cong., Congregational. Episc., Episcopal. F. W. Bapt., or F. Bapt., Free Will Baptist. Luth., Lutheran. Meth. Episc., Methodist Episcopal. Presb., Presbyterian. Ref. (Dutch), Reformed (Dutch). Unit., Unitarian.
